THE AUSTRALIAN CRICKETERS.

THE SECOND TEST MATCH.

DECISIVE VICTORY FOR AUSTRALIA.

A TEN WICKETS' WIN.

THE ENGLISHMEN OUTCLASSED AT EVERY POINT.

TRUMPER'S MASTERLY PERFORMANCE.

BRILLIANT BATTING BY HILL.

M'LAREN AND HAYWARD IN GOOD FORM.

THE ENGLISHMAN ON THE RESULT.

LONDON, June 16. The second test match between England and Australia was resumed at Lord's at 11 o'clock this morning. The weather was lovely and the wicket good. There was again an immense attendance on the ground.

THE ENGLISHMEN OUTCLASSED AT EVERY POINT.

With three wickets down for 156, the Australians continued their first innings. Hill, 72, and Noble, 42, the out-of-form men of the previous evening, again took their places at the wickets. The bowling was entrusted to Mead and Jessop. The batsmen commenced cautiously, successive maidens being sent down. With the score at 156 Rhodes retired. Jessop, the scoring then became faster. M'Laren missed Hill in the slips when his score was 82. Shortly afterwards Noble was caught at the wickets by Lilley off Rhodes for 54. Four for 189, Hill, 72, Noble gave an admirable display. He batted steadily throughout. He was at the wickets for two hours and a half, and his score included five fours.

TRUMPER, who joined Hill, batted in good style, and played the bowling with great ease and confidence. When Hill reached the century he was heartily cheered all round the ground. He was badly missed in the slips by Ranjitsinghi. The fielding was slack at times, the excellent batting having a discouraging effect on the home side. Several changes in the bowling were tried, Jackson, Mead, Rhodes, Jessop, and Townsend going on in succession.

After increasing his score to 135 Hill was caught by Fry off Townsend.

He gave a brilliant display of batting, and hit well all round the wicket. He was four hours at the wicket, and his score included 17 fours. Kelly, partner of Trumper, who had scored 37, the total being five wickets for 271. At the adjournment for lunch the score stood at 293 for the loss of five wickets, Trumper being 48 and Kelly 9.

Upon resuming Kelly was caught at the wickets off Mead without adding to his score. His runs were mostly singles. Six for 306, Trumper 61, Trumble joined Trumper and the Victorian batted steadily. Trumble commenced quietly and was in for a quarter of an hour before scoring. Trumper displayed much freedom while the Victorian was at the wickets. Trumble was caught by Lilley off Jessop for 21. Seven for 386, Trumper 117, Laver, who followed Trumble, was bowled by Townsend without scoring. Eight for 387, Jones succeeded Laver, and after scoring 17 was caught off a skier by Mead off Townsend's bowling. Jones hit hard. Nine for 421, Howell, who was the last to go, was bowled first ball by Jessop. Ten for 421; Trumper 135 not out. Trumper narrowly escaped being bowled by both Jackson and Mead just before he had reached the century. He was loudly cheered at the close of the innings, which lasted three hours and a quarter and comprised 20 fours.

In the heavy minority of 215 the Englishmen started their second innings badly. Jones and Howell carried on the attack, Fry and Hayward batting. The former was bowled by Jones for 4. One for 5; Hayward 1. Ranjitsinghi, who followed, was caught by Noble off Howell's bowling for 0. Two for 6, Townsend filled the gap. Before adding to his score Hayward was missed by Kelly off Jones. The Gloucestershire man completed 8, when he was bowled by Jones. Three for 23; Hayward 11. Jackson succeeded, and the batsmen making a stand. Noble and Trumble were tried with the ball. Jones came gradually.

Jackson returned a ball to Trumble and retired for 37. Four for 91. Stumps were then drawn, England requiring 121 runs to equalise the scores.

The match was resumed to-day. The weather was again fine, and the wicket was wearing well. There was a good attendance. M'Laren joined Hayward, the not-out man of the previous day. The batsmen scored somewhat rapidly notwithstanding frequent changes in the bowling. Jones, Howell, Noble, Trumble, and Laver being tried in succession. The bowling and fielding were excellent. Hayward, after raising his score to 77, was caught by Trumble in the slips off Laver. The retiring batsman played a good innings. He was 3 hours and a quarter at the wicket, and his score included 11 fours. The fifth wicket fell for 160. Tyldesley joined M'Laren, who had up to this stage scored 85, free play. The Lancashire man, however, was not destined to remain long, as, after scoring four, he gave a chance to Gregory at cover-point, which was not declined. In the second innings the wicket was again at Wellington refused to raise or lower wages, and overtime is to remain as at present.

Six for 166, Jones, the next man, was caught by Trumper in the long-field for 4. Seven for 177. Lilley, after knocking out 12, was bowled by Jones with a ball. Eight for 212. Rhodes was caught by Noble off his own bowling for a couple, the ninth wicket falling for 240. The adjournment for lunch then took place. During the three hours and a quarter that M'Laren had been at the wicket he had batted in splendid style, and did not give a chance. He had hit 16 fours.

On resumption of play Mead, the last man, joined M'Laren, but was given out leg before to Noble without having scored. M'Laren, not out, 88. The innings closed for a total of 240.

Jones and Laver secured three wickets each, while Noble got two, and Trumble and Howell shared the remaining two.

After a brief interval Darling and Worrall went to the wickets to knock up the 26 runs which the Australians required to win, and this they did without being separated, the Australians winning the match by 10 wickets and three runs.

Following are the scores:—

THE ENGLISH PRESS ON THE AUSTRALIANS.

The newspapers comment upon the wonderful length and pace of Jones's bowling, and on the brilliancy of the fielding of Noble and Laver, of Gregory at cover-point, and of Jones at mid-off.

THE ENGLISHMEN OUTCLASSED.

It is the general opinion that the Englishmen were outclassed at every point of the game, their display being looked upon as altogether deplorable.

Trumper's masterly and stylish performance is regarded as amply justifying his selection in the Australian team.

The Australians have won this match at all points of the game. Their batting and bowling were superb, and there was nothing in the wicket to help them. It was a complete triumph for the Australians. Trumper's masterly and stylish performance is regarded as amply justifying his selection in the Australian team.

The Australians have won this match at all points of the game. Their batting and bowling were superb, and there was nothing in the wicket to help them. It was a complete triumph for the Australians. The Englishmen were outclassed at every point of the game, their display being looked upon as altogether deplorable.
